YOU NEVER CAN TAME A WILD-CAT

Mr. Dodson warns against use of treacherous, dangerous calomel.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with your bile it crabs into it, causing cramping and nausea. If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your drugstore and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today, you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tonic, you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, safe and safe to give to children; they like it—Adv.

WAR SECRETARY REVEALS PLOT TO SHIP OUT LIQUOR

A longer autobiographical record in the Congressional Directory than any other cabinet officer, in brief, tells of the shipping interests of the country. He is from Missouri, and is also worried because his state's senator died in a thorn in the side of his beloved chief. He is in no line to leave these days and has no bed of roses, panics nor any other thing.

William Beachcroft Wilson—Whodunnit?—has been about the middle name for a man who boasts of having started life as a coal miner—the secretary of labor for many years, and has more troubles than any man in the cabinet, for he must satisfy his labor friends and at the same time satisfy the other elements that the administration would like to have friendly, and who could do it?

The black coat of living, he investigates and reports upon. When it shows increase after increase, it always shows that the Democrats have been in power during all the rising years of the country. He is a man who can conscientiously show that the Republicans are to blame.

He manages to do it to his own satisfaction if not that of the rest of the public and they say his chief likes the way he works too.

Now, his chief assistant, Louis F. Post, with the red whiskers, who did us one day to keep down the Sheldon how to be red blooded Americans and win the war, is on trial before congress for being more than friendly with the anarchists and the bolsheviks, and naturally, it is a disgrace to Mr. Wilson—this Mr. Post, not the other one, for he is for ONE thing all the time—the labor.

But to get to Mr. Baker. They have called him a friend of the conscientious objectors and slackers so he is in a little bit of a fix. He has a few ways that a baseball thrown by a woman. The war was won without any of his help. He is a Republican and when a Republican congress tells him to discontinue "unnecessary" wars, he is in a little bit of a fix. He is a Republican and when a Republican congress tells him to discontinue "unnecessary" wars, he is in a little bit of a fix.

There are those who believe Mr. Baker is just "cute" enough during the war to saddle a lot of stuff onto independent boards, and when it all over he could smile at the probes and the investigations and keep his temper. For instance, the notorious "housing board" of Washington, the rotten aircraft board of early war days, and a lot of other things.

Those were all war activities that the secretary of war might have been asked to handle, but Mr. Baker got boards created for this and devoted himself to winning the war with the military. He accepted responsibility for things overseas and he "got away" with it. At first shape, at least he won the war, and as nearly everybody had a son "over there" and they got pretty good food and good pay, and a lot of other things, there are a few who are not so happy.

Lucky Mr. Baker. For a time his name was mentioned for the presidency, but apparently he didn't care it to be done, for he didn't raise any big fund for campaign expenses and he didn't have to admit spending $50,000 for advertising himself, as Senator Politzner has just done through his secretary, and all in all, Newton Ditch Baker has very reason to smile. He is not the only one in the power of his own state.

Out there in Ohio, Gov. Cox and "the wets" seem to have things their own way. The secretary of war is notable for his dress, when refreshments of a flonid nature are under consideration, and Ohio being considered rather "wet" in sentiment, there was little cause, it was said, to have him exert any undue influence in Ohio in the pre-convention campaign.

He didn't get into the fight and play into the hands of Mr. Bryan by making a "dry" campaign and certainly to the advantage of the administration for him to let things take their course and trust to the president getting as much support as possible from the Cox "wets" in the end. It has been a happy position for the secretary of war.

He Likes El Paso. I saw him today and he was beaming just as he beamed at the Paso Norte banquet, when he told us of El Paso how surprised he was to find such a fair city. He repeated this when I visited him at his luxuriously leather upholstered office in the state, war and navy department building. He was just as genial and just as smiling as when he was at El Paso.

He was certainly surprised at the beautiful city I found at El Paso. "I was not prepared for it," he said, "I have often heard it said that it was a 'dry' city, but my visit to El Paso, he continued, 'was one of the very pleasant experiences of my trip around the country.' Then he asked a lot of things about El Paso and its people and its future. 'Is there anything we can do at El Paso for you?' he said. 'No,' I answered, 'I am running 'round there.'

Murder Inquiry Reveals Plot To Ship Out Liquor

A special agent of the G. H. & S. A. railroad and city detective Ed. Smith are expected to arrive here Tuesday night with a negro, Mitchell Harden, in their custody. Harden was arrested in Austin in connection with the investigation into the killing here of a railroad, who was shot and fatally wounded last Tuesday night.

Some time ago the city detectives were informed that negro dining car crews were shipping liquor out of El Paso on trains which they served and that the liquor was placed aboard the moving trains as they left the city.

At the time when patrolmen J. E. Beck and R. E. McKnight were picked up in Northrup after he had been shot, a negro dining car attendant passed them and offered to assist them. The suspicion of the detectives was aroused because the negro was due to leave with his train, which was then making ready to start. The day following the shooting a sack containing whisky was found by the railroad men at a ditch near the scene of the killing.

As a result of their findings the detectives had Dr. Die up an expert dining car in question when it reached here on the return trip. For some time the negro was closely questioned by detective Captain Claid Smith.

Finally one of them broke down and confessed to a transaction in liquor, the detectives say. This negro was identified as the one who had professed his assistance in removing the injured officer.

Now the question according to the officer, not only threw light on the killing of Northrup, but disclosed widespread bootlegging through many porters and waiters working out of El Paso.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon eats more of his meat at the great station. A Washington woman asked the senator to give her 75 cents' worth of potatoes.

"We don't like 'em any more," the senator said. "We are wearing patches on our clothes these days." The high cost of living has got back to the wall anyhow.

The hotels have signs on the door of every room: "Be sure to look in the closet. Have you left anything?" From the prices charged, it might be appropriate to ask: "Have you left anything?"

Two old soldiers at the Soldiers Home were talking. One said to the other: "You are too old to talk about love." "It's not love," he said, "it's patience."

"I have been married nine times," confessed one of them. His comrade, who had gone through his civil war with him, replied: "You always were a plunger for punishment."

Prices are not the same everywhere and they are not always due to the cost of living. A pair of pajamas—pardon the expression, of apparel intimis, but they were for male wear—in a store on a street at Ninth, were sold at $5.25.

The same goods, same size, make and all, were priced the same day in an F street store between 15th and 16th streets—the same (approximately) four and a half blocks away, at $8.

Both were men's shirts, and apparently the same type of shirt. A railroad out of Washington for Richmond runs regularly beneath the arch of the United States, in a tunnel from the union station for a distance of half a mile or more.

Men up here are wearing crocheted hats these days and the plain peak stick pin is much in vogue by good dressers.

Also, shirts of solid colors are popular with men—for instance, a purple shirt is worn with a light blue tie, a yellow shirt with a dark blue tie and a pink shirt with a dark green tie.

The proper thing in Washington society these days for wearing wear is to dress for men and women for women.

EL PASO HERALD SOLDIER DEAD IS DUE THESDAY

El Paso spent Sunday in commemoration of the country's soldier dead, who gave their lives to uphold the nation in war. The parade moved from the chamber of commerce building at 10 o'clock and proceeded to the court house, where it broke up and went in groups to the cemeteries to hold services over the graves of the dead.

In Washington park officers and men of the regular army, women of the military auxiliaries, Boy Scouts and aged veterans mingled, all in tribute to fallen comrades and brothers. There was no sound as the flowers were scattered on the graves, and the firing squad's three volleys were sharp and distinct. Then a wailing siren "city and country" over the graves.

Services at Cemeteries. J. M. Morrison made the address at Evergreen cemetery and C. D. Strong, of the American Legion, made the address at Concordia. The Seventh cavalry band played at both cemeteries and fired salute shot volleys over the graves.
